THE FOUR GREAT SOURCES OF HEALTH. The preservation of health mainly depends on early rising, temperance in cating and drinking, exercise, and cleanliness. These important advantages are distributed between the rich and the poor in a tolerably fair proportion, which may account for the apparent equability in the length of life, between two states so seemingly opposite in respect of those advantages, which might be thought to conduce to the enjoyment of health and long life. The poor have early rising, which is of the very first consequence. From this, the rich often exclude themselves, because they have no obligation to compel them, and because they go to bed too late. The humble and scanty diet of the poor, they so much deplore, is yet of advantage to their health; though it is true, as they work hard, they could often Titles.

Their luxurious living and compartive want of exercise vitiates the blood and humors, and lays the foundations of various complaints. From not being able to afford suppers the poor enjoy sound rest, the want of which is so much complained of by the rich. But the poor injure themselves materially by The use of intoxicating drinks. "There is scarcely a profession in which the sympathies of its professors are more painfully excited than that of the medical practitioner. How often is he called to the bed of hopeless sickness; and that too, in a family, the members of which are drawn together by the closest bonds of love. How painful is a to meet the enquiring gaze of attatched friends, or weeping relatives, directed towards him in quest of that consolation, that assurance of safety, which he is not able to give! And how melancholy is it to behold the last ray of hope, which had lingered uppassed from the dead to the living, from the side without the limits of this State : departed to the bereaved,-hark to that which bespeaks the utter prestration of the the same will be entered of record.

Among the indications of the immense wealth of England, none is more striking than the amount of deposites in Savings Banks. In the year 1832 this amount was thirteen millions of pounds sterling, and in 1834 fifteen millions. As no doubt nearly the whole of this immense sum is deposited by the poorer and laboring classes, the evidence it affords of prosperity is still more gratifying.

PERFORMANCES.

Mucklejohn, Jr. was partially trained in the fall of 1830, then 3 years old; but only suffered to run sufficient to test his speed and to try his future promise. Fully trained the next season, and on the 26th of October, 1831, he won the Jockey Club purse, $80, at Pineville South Carolina, two mile heats-beating Col. Richardson's b. f. Lapruelle, 4 years old, and, Col. Sinkler's c. Van Buren, same age. (Time not stated—said to be very quick.) After this race he was exercised with an unmanageable filly, who, in defiance of the efforts of her rider, constantly took the lead, by which means he soon became accustomed to look for a leader, and to stop when he saw nothing in advance of him-and on the 21 of December, 1831, on the Stateburg Course 4 mile heats, purso §300, ran into the crowd near the Judge's stand, at the close of the third mile, while far in advance of Col Sinkler's br. c, Van Buren, Col. THE SILK CULTURIST. HE Executive Committee of the Hartford

County Silk Society, have commenced a monthly publication, called the Silk Culturist and Farmer's Manual.

The object of the publication is to disseminate thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Mulberry Tree, in all its varieties-the rearing of Silk Worms-the production of Cocoons, and the reeling of Silk, in the most approved method. The importance of this knowledge will appear from the fact that the nett profits of land devoted to the culture of Silk, is double, if not triple to that derived from any crop which can be put upon it. It is also a fact, that every farmer can raise several hundred dollars worth of silk, without interfering with his ordinary agricultural operations. But in order to avail himself of this facility to gain competency and wealth, which our soil and climate have given him, he must possess himself of information on the subject-for without it his attempts will be fruitless. It is, therefore, the object of the Committee to diffuse this information as extensively as possible, and at the cheapest rate. The publication will contain a complete manual or directory from sowing the seed to reeling the Silk, together with such facts and experiments, as will enable farmers to raise Silk, and prepare it for market, without further knowledge or assistance. It will also contain interesting matter on agricultural subjects in

Culture of Silk. PRACTICAL TREATISE on the Culture of Silk, adapted to the climate and soil of the United States, by F. G. Comstock, Scere-tary to the Hartford County Silk Society, and Editor of the Silk Culturist. Illustrated by engravings. The interest in all parts of the United States in the culture and manufacture of Silk, manifested by the constant calls for information on the subject, has induced the publisher to have prepared a plain Practical Treatise on the cultivation of will wants of plain practical men. The Practical Culturist in this country needs a directory adapted to the soil on which he plants his trees, and the climate in which he rears his worms, without reference to soils and climates less congenial to their growth. It has been therefore the object of the author to make a treatise strictly practical, omitting nothing of importance, and adding nothing of a uscless or extraneous character. As making the raw material into sewing Silk and Twist is very profitable to the Silk grower, all necessary information for that purpose will be This work is in the press and will soon be published in a duodecimo of about 100 pages, in handsome binding-price 50 cents. A part of the edition will be put up in elastic covers to be for-
